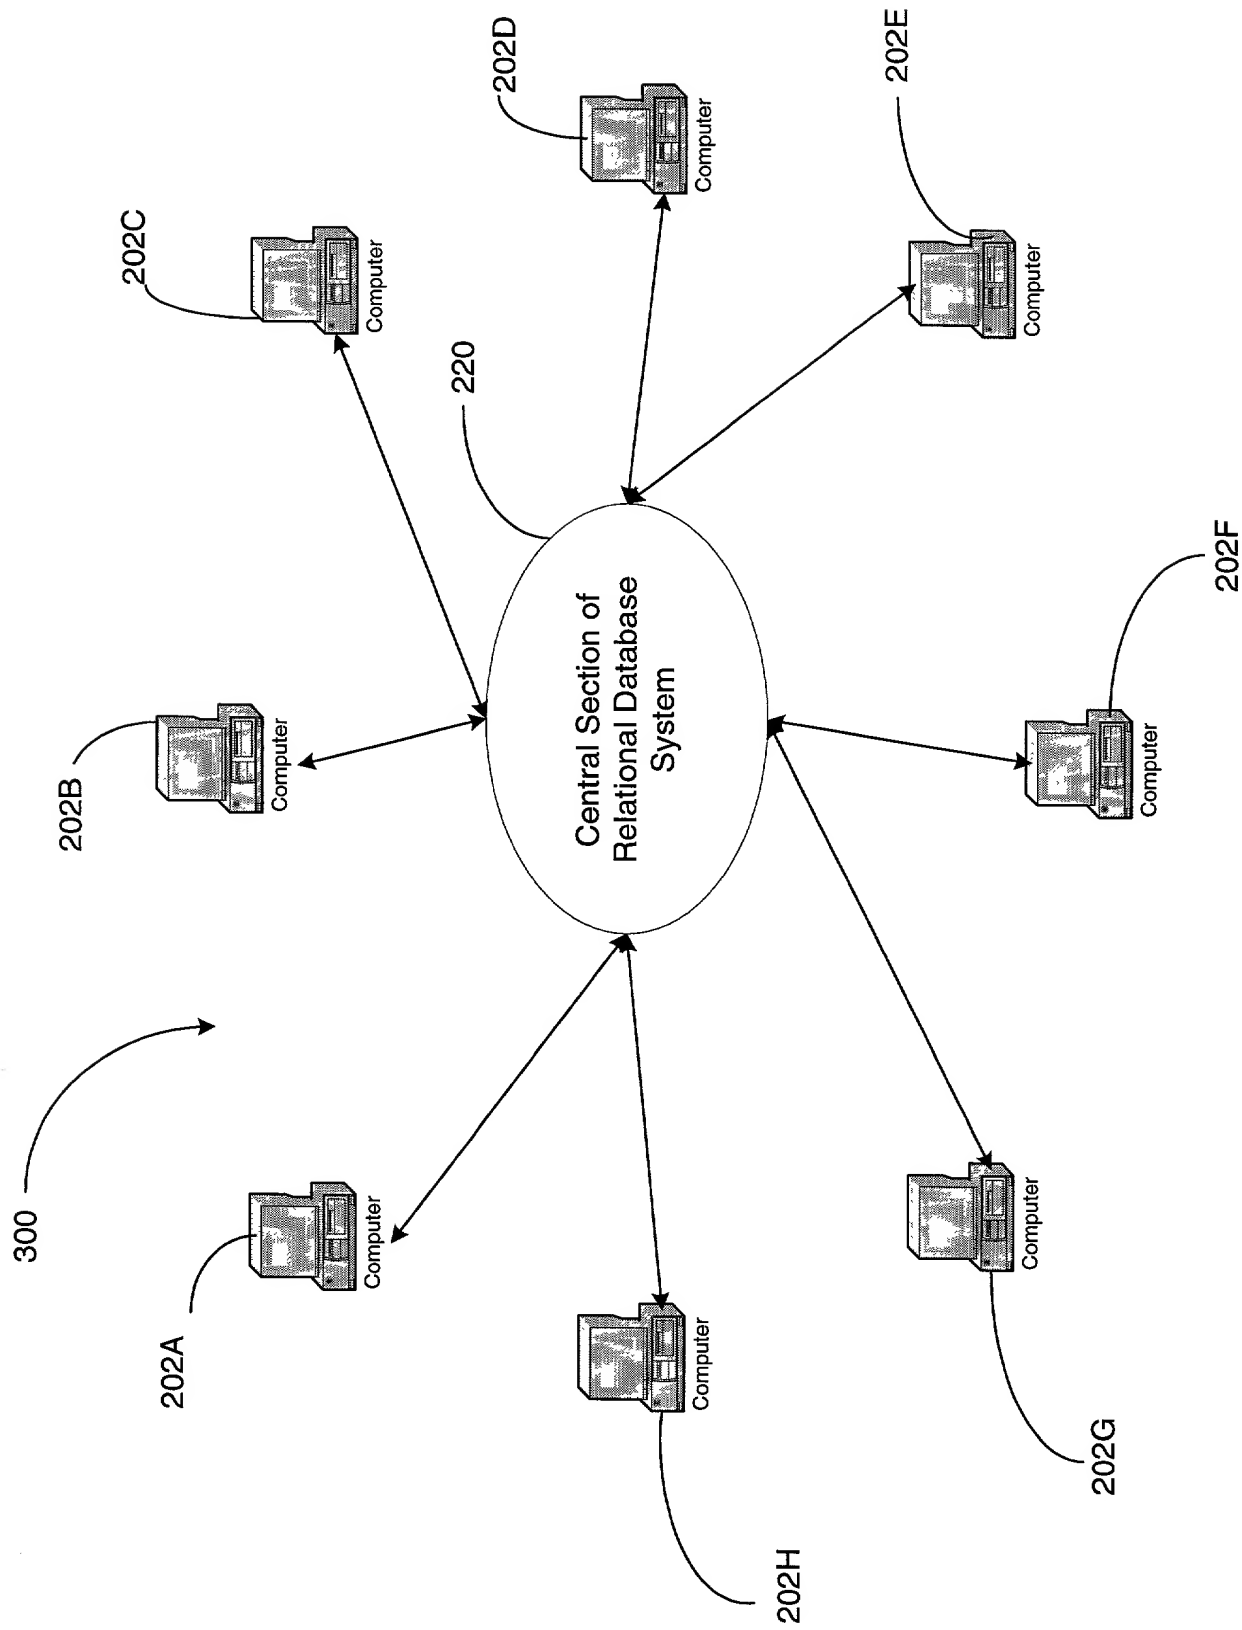

FIGURE 4

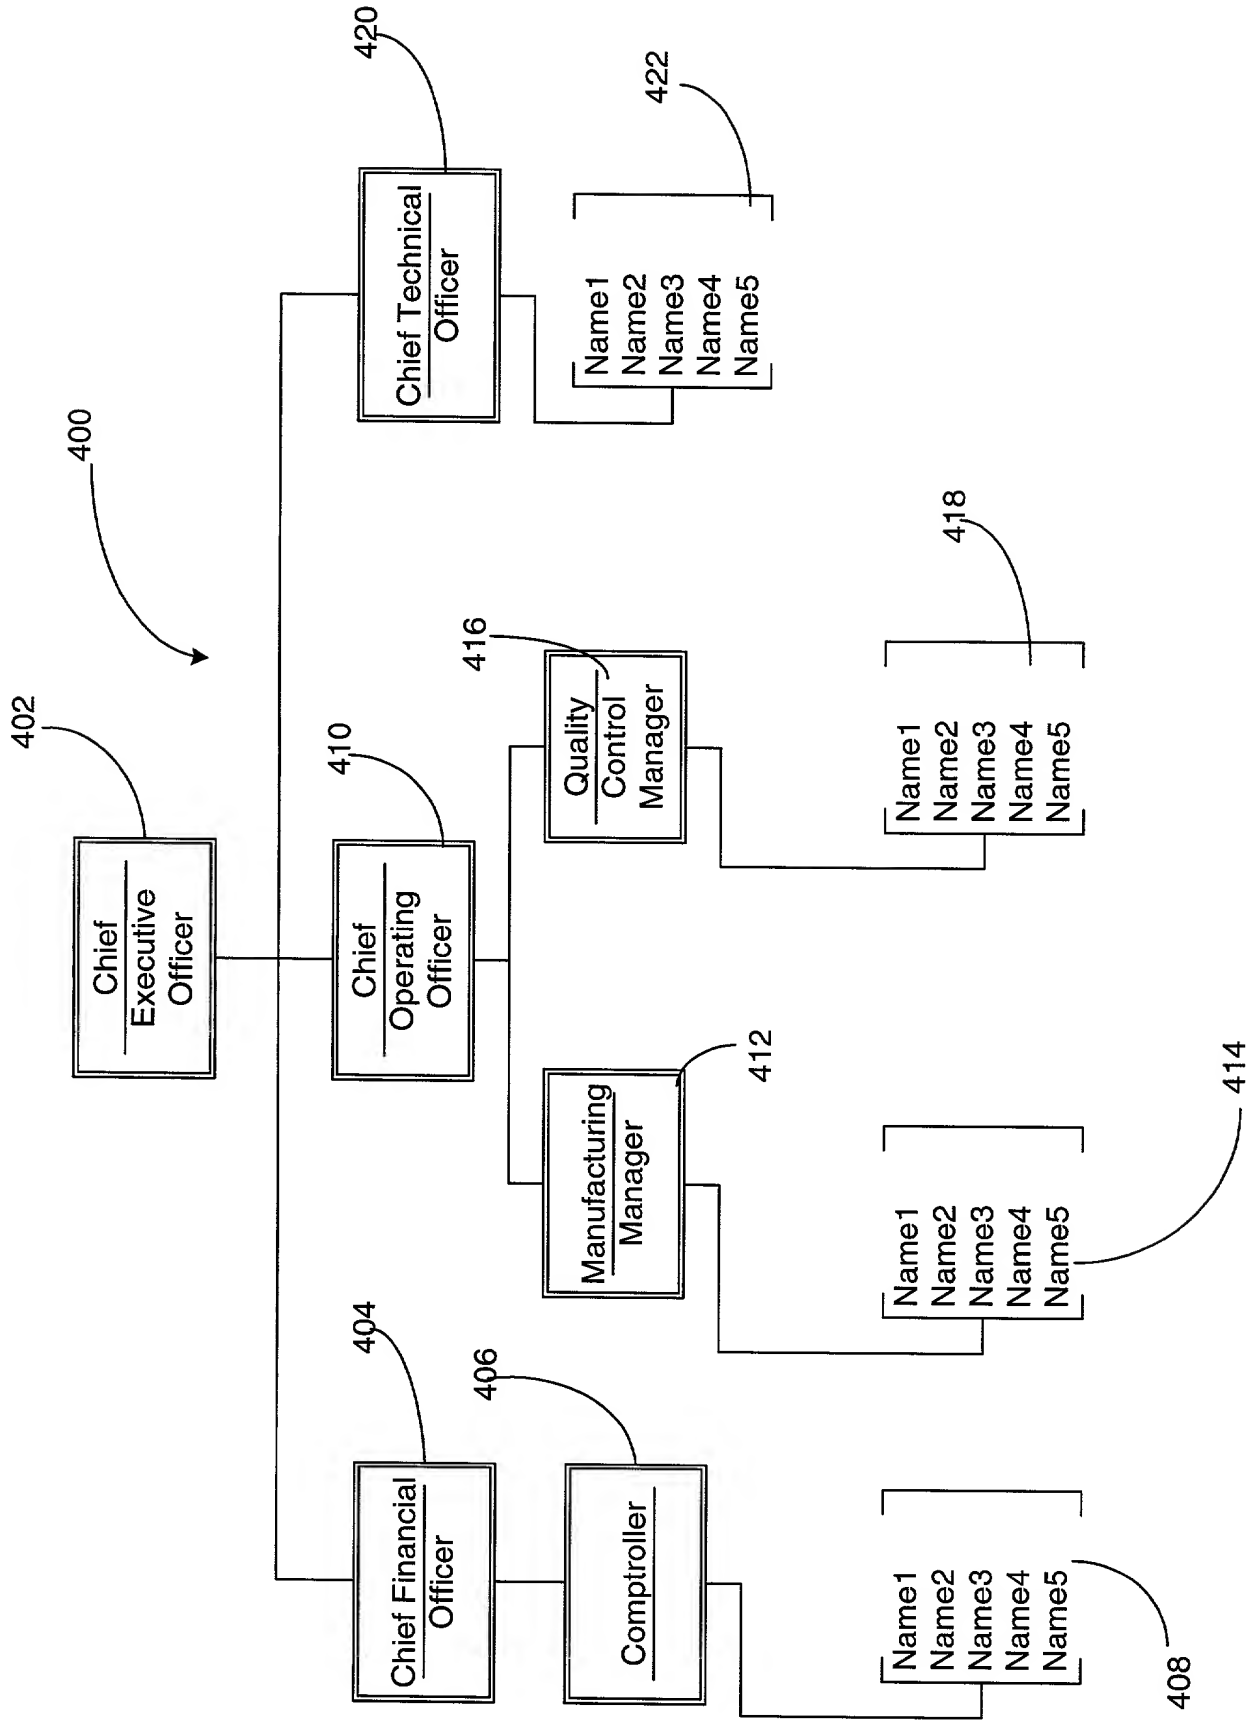

FIG. 5 is a block diagram of a system architecture. The diagram shows three main components: a Primary Key Index Table (502), an Employee Table (504), and a Master Access Table (506). The Primary Key Index Table (502) contains fields for Key No., Name, and Next Key No. The Employee Table (504) contains fields for Primary Key, Name, Address, Position, Start Date, End Date, Office Location, and Education. The Master Access Table (506) contains fields for Primary Key and Foreign Key Name. Arrows indicate relationships: an arrow from 500 points to the Primary Key Index Table (502), an arrow from 504 points to the Employee Table (504), and an arrow from 506 points to the Master Access Table (506).
